CLBB Highlights

Now We See You: The Reid Technique and 'When They See Us'

Nancy Gertner & Dean A. Strange | New York Law Journal
November 14, 2019

Highlight: "Reid never has acknowledged an uncomfortable truth that this lawsuit may expose if Duvernay and Netflix win: that is, that the Reid Technique, whether used correctly or incorrectly, can cause incalculable harm to innocent people and to justice itself."

Wisconsin's Governor Should Pardon Brendan Dassey

CNN | November 4, 2019

CLBB is participating in a clemency petition for Brendan Dassey, made famous by the Netflix series "Making a Murderer." The petition to Wisconsin Governor Tony Evers highlights Dassey's youthful age and cognitive limitations, as well as the employment of interrogation tactics by police which are known to promote false confessions. The Center also joined in his unsuccessful petition to the United States Supreme Court in 2018 seeking to invalidate this highly problematic confession. CLBB participated in a similar clemency petition for Cyntoia Brown, which resulted in the commutation of her sentence in August of this year.

Brave New Brain Tech: IEEE Neuroethics Program Development of Guidelines for Use of Neurotechnologies in Practice

IEEE | November 16, 2019

Last Saturday, CLBB Executive Director Francis Shen participated in a live-stream panel on ethical and legal guidelines for the use of neurotechnologies in a range of applications, including medicine, law, public life, and national security operations. Click here for more details.

CLBB Welcomes Jim Joslin to the Advisory Board

CLBB is excited to announce our newest Advisory Board member!

Jim Joslin, CFP, is a founding principal and Chairman of TFC Financial Management. Jim has more than 40 years of experience in personal wealth management, including investment analysis, portfolio management, and trust banking, as well as a private trustee. Prior to TFC, he was the principal of J.L. Joslin Associates, which provided consulting services to major financial companies serving affluent investors. Jim also held senior portfolio management and marketing positions at Jennison Associates, Eaton Vance Corporation, Thorndike, Doran, Paine and Lewis, and Wellington Management Company - all major firms in the individual and tax-qualified money management business. A holder of the CFP credential, he is also a member of the CFA Institute, a Lifetime member of the FPA, The Boston Economic Club, and past member of the BNA Tax Management Advisory Board. Jim has frequently spoken at conferences and led seminars, addressing audiences at the Boston Security Analysts Society, the Harvard Business School Association, the Financial Planning Association, the Investment Counsel Association, the American Bar Association/ALI, and other organizations and events in New York, Washington, DC, San Diego, Chicago, and New Orleans.

Upon receiving his A.B. from Harvard College, Jim was elected Class Secretary and served as a Naval Intelligence Officer in both the U.S. and Europe. He was elected Chief Marshall of Harvard's 1972 Commencement and has served as president of the Harvard Class Secretaries Association, on the Harvard Alumni Association Executive Committee, the Board of the Harvard Club of Boston, as well as vice president and member of the Board of Governors of the Handel & Haydn Society, and recently served as Treasurer and a director of the Harvard Musical Association. Currently, he is Treasurer of the Pioneer Institute, a Trustee of the Maine Maritime Museum, a Trustee of the International Museum of World War II, a member of the Board of the Lown Institute, as well as a member of the Glimmerglass Opera National Council.
